Kew is an area steeped in history with a large part of its heritage connected to river life.

Kew Bridge is the wide-span bridge over the River Thames connecting Brentford and Kew, but the bridge you see today is in fact the third bridge to hold this name with the original opening in 1759 and inaugurated by George III and his mother Augusta.

When it first opened to the public, it created so much excitement that over 3,000 people crossed it on the first day.

The third and current bridge was officially opened on 20 May 1903 and stands at an impressive 1,182 feet (360 m) long, and the largest of its three arches has a span of 133 feet (41 m).

FUN FACT

When the tide is high pubs along Strand on the Green often have their outside seating areas turned into a pond, with chairs and tables left floating and visitors searching for higher ground to enjoy their drinks.

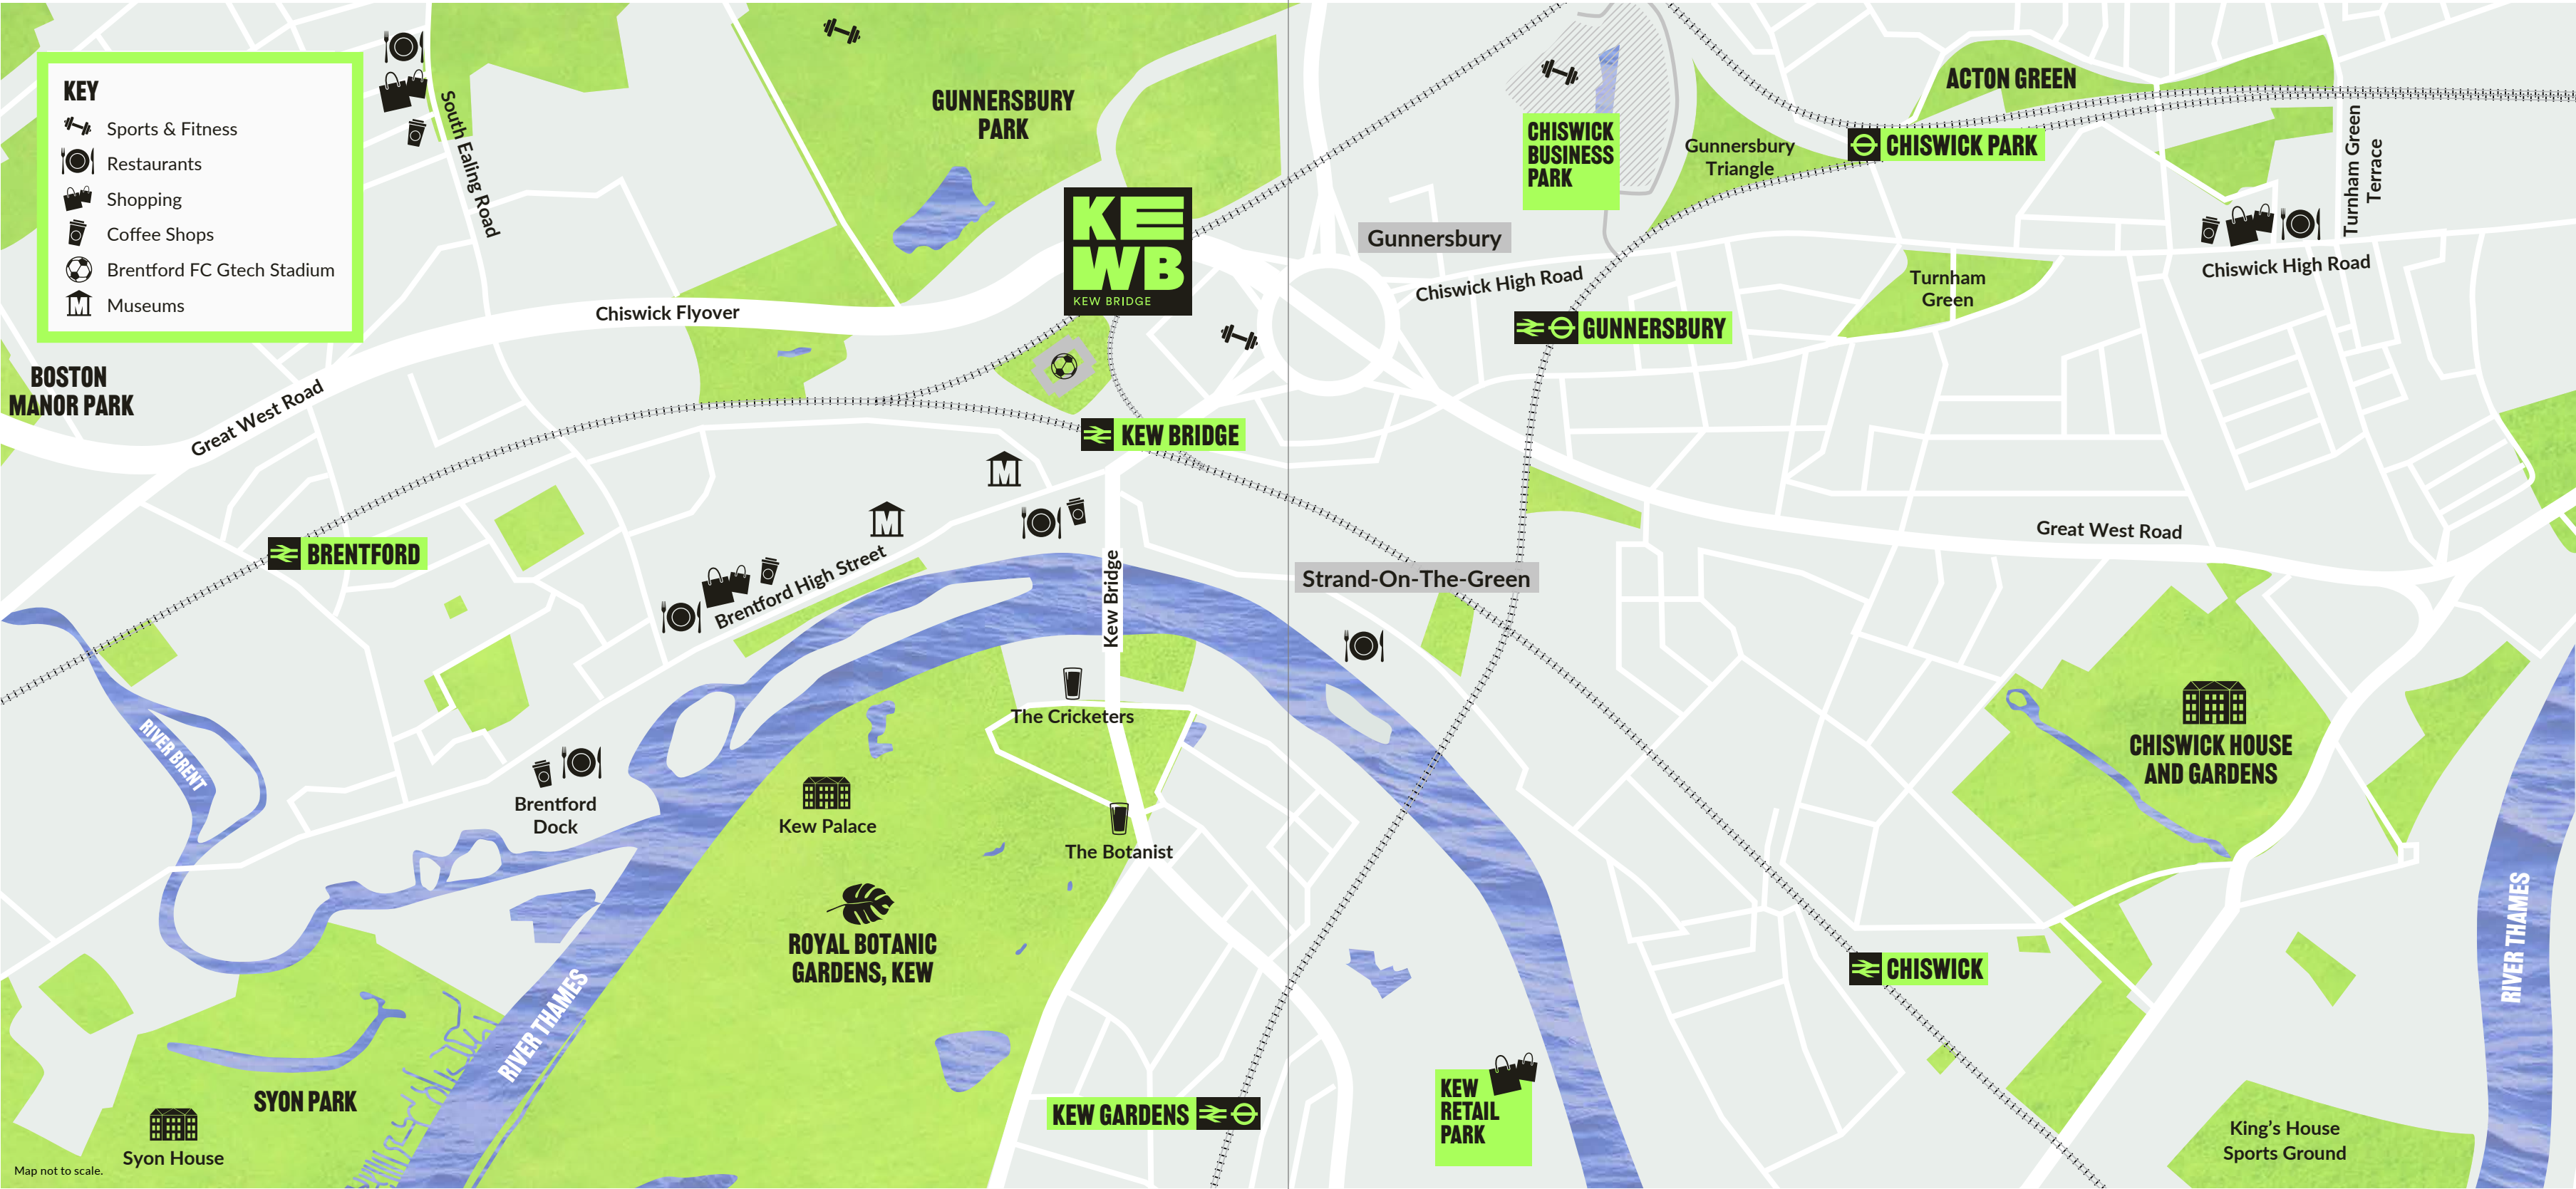

From Kew Bridge you can look down upon Strand on the Green, this picturesque riverside location which is set within a conservation area began life as a fishing settlement in 1353 and likely called 'Stronde' (meaning shore). By the 18th century it flourished as a place of river trade but with the opening of Kew Bridge and the proximity of the Royal Family at Kew Palace it started becoming more fashionable and trade began to decline.

Across the River, are the world-famous Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, which started life in 1759 when Princess Augusta founded a 9-acre botanical garden in the pleasure gardens at Kew. Since their creation, these botanical gardens have become a place of such scientific significance and renown that they were granted UNESCO World Heritage status in 2023.

Kew's place in London's rich history is well established with many opportunities to step back in time in this historical but constantly evolving and flourishing west London location.

“Everyone at Peabody New Homes was so helpful and very efficient, guiding us through each stage of the processes.”

MEET RAPH & JAYE - FIRST TIME BUYERS AT THE SWITCH, WIMBLEDON

Buying a first home, getting married and preparing for the arrival of a baby are all big life events and Raph and Jaye La Touche experienced all these milestones simultaneously.

With a moving date of 10th August and their nuptials arranged for 12th August, it was a busy summer for the newly-weds who bought a home through Shared Ownership at The Switch in Wimbledon.

Raph explains: “We knew we were taking on a lot but couldn’t wait to move in. It was actually brilliant timing as the process was smooth thanks to Peabody New Homes support. Getting married in Battersea and then coming back to our own home after made the day even more special.” Jaye adds, “it’s a huge relief to own a home now and I’m not missing sharing my kitchen with three other people one bit.” ■

MEET OLIVIA - FIRST TIME BUYER AT NEW MANSION SQUARE, BATTERSEA

With the lease ending on her rental home in Balham, and after experiencing the challenges of renting and navigating increasing rental costs, Olivia decided to explore the opportunities to invest in her first home in the city.

Olivia purchased a one-bedroom south facing apartment with a large open plan kitchen dining area filled with natural light. “I can’t wait to enjoy the sunshine in the summer and make the most of the generous balcony space. All the appliances here are brand-new and from reputable brands, which gives me that added reassurance. Everything feels very high quality.”

“Buying a Shared Ownership apartment means I am investing in a space of my own, in a location I love. Buying my initial share at New Mansion Square is really just the start. I would like to staircase over the next few years so that I own 100% of my home.” ■

“Shared Ownership gave me the step onto the ladder that I needed and the opportunity to invest in somewhere I could really call home.”
